If New York and the Stonewall Riots are the birthplace of the Gay Liberation Movement, then Kansas City is where it was first conceived. On this driving tour through the city, the tour sheds light on how the gay agenda was first formed three years before Stonewall and shares the city's rich and colorful LGBTQ+ history.

This approximately 90-minute tour will begin near UMKC (the University of Missouri-Kansas City) and wrap up outside the Kansas City Museum with stops outside historic gay bar locations, Womontown, the Liberty Memorial, the Jazz District, and many, many more. Along the way, you'll hear voices from the LGBTQ+ community share their stories, past and present.
